

BRYN THE BOULDER REMEMBERS THE ROMANS

There was fighting between the Romans and the Brigantes and some people were killed.

The Romans built new roads. They were always busy with soldiers marching between forts, and wagons carrying supplies.

The Romans seized large areas of land. They cut down trees and built big forts that could be seen for miles around.

Once the Romans and Brigantes got used to each other, life for the Brigantes carried on much as it was before the Romans came.

The Romans were good to trade with. They brought new pottery and foods into the area. I wonder if the Brigantes will still be able to get those things?

The most obvious thing the Romans left behind is the forts. The Brigantes have taken stones from some of them for their own buildings.